Career Opportunity - Senior Analyst (Salmon Arm)

Can you bridge the gap between the business of forestry and the analysis required to support informed decision making? Are you analytical by nature and understand data, statistics, and a range of analytical tools? Forsite requires a Senior Analyst for our Salmon Arm office. The successful applicant will be the primary liaison between technical staff and clients. As such, strong interpretive, planning and communication skills are essential. The position requires a minimum 10 years of experience in the BC or Alberta forest industry and a post secondary education with a natural resource management focus. You must be registered with the Association of BC Forest Professionals (or eligible to be registered).

Scope:

Working within the Analysis and Technology business area, and reporting to the Manager, you will work closely with our clients to provide forestry business knowledge and technical analysis that offers cost effective, innovative, and meaningful solutions. You will have exceptional problem solving, written and oral communications skills with an ability to translate complex analysis results into practical knowledge that supports informed decision making.

The range of projects may include: timber supply data package development, timber/fiber supply forecasting, development of carbon reporting / management strategies, landbase reporting for FSP commitments, operating area negotiations support, multiple accounts analysis, economic operability assessments, certification impact assessments, inventory projections, growth and yield curve development, strategic silviculture investment analyses, etc.

Accountability:

- Time Management
- Project budgets
- Assist with marketing and sales efforts
- Supervision - technical tasks / multiple projects and supervise / manage outside contractors hired by the company.

Financial Management:

- Support the building and management of annual budgets as directed by the manager.
- Manage projects to maximize success and financial return.

Marketing/Sales:

- Supporting role in the development of bids and proposals.
- Provide feed-back for future opportunities and potential for new products and services

Project Management:

- Act as project leader on analysis projects as directed by the manager.
- Apply specialized knowledge in forest management and project management in the successful completion of project under your direction.
- Ensures project accountability is assigned and monitored.
- Create environment within project team that fosters open communication and critique of process and procedures to support continuous improvement.

Client Liaison:

- Translate client concerns/challenges into projects designed to provide a solution.
- Ensures client expectations are clear and met within projects.
- Manage client expectations, scope issues, and billings.

Forest Management:

- Ensure accurate and efficient analytical process within projects. You must fully understand the technical details of the work you oversee and be capable of innovation in these technical areas.
- Be knowledgeable in tenures, timber supply, stumpage, land use planning, G&Y, and GIS.
- Provides technical guidance in the use of databases, timber supply models, and GIS processes.

Leadership:

- Provides technical and management leadership or support when needed
- Create a positive work and social environment that supports Forsite's culture
